Russian Traitors Roughly Treated By Petrograd Mob

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Petrograd, Oct. 17.—The generals arrested for participating in the Kornilov uprising in the Petrograd province of October were compelled to walk three miles to the railroad station while they were jeered, stoned, and threatened by several thousand persons. The officers escaped alive through the strategy of a member of the cadet guard who, according to reports, started the train out of the station as it was being fired upon by the mob. The prisoners were brought from the guard house at eight P. M. to where motor cars, surrounded by a hostile crowd, were waiting. The mob, which was formed by the guard, had difficulty in standing off the mob which demanded that the generals be surrendered to them for summary punishment. The mob refused the prisoners permission to ride and insisted that they walked the longest possible route to the station through the principal streets. The mob followed, throwing sticks and stones. The procession was stopped at each street lamp to prolong the bating while the crowd shouted "kill the traitors!" General Arion was struck in the eye by a stone while General Brusilov's spine was injured seriously.

When the prisoners arrived at the station the mob demanded that they be put in a car instead of the coaches prepared for them. The guard compromised on the baggage car but the mob still refused to permit the train to depart. The situation became so tense that the mob ordered the guards to open fire on the train. The guards ordered the engineer to pull out as quickly as possible.

LAW VALID IS OPINION OF BELDEN

ONE OF THE POINTS CONTESTED IN MILK SUITS DECIDED CONSTITUTIONAL BY PRESIDING JUDGE.

IS IMPORTANT RULING

Hearings May Be Held Under Statute Passed by the Last Legislature in Present Milk Investigation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Oct. 17.—Judge E. B. Belden of Racine today notified the attorney general that the statute enacted at the last session of the legislature giving the state power to examine witnesses in trust and conspiracy suits is valid.

This law gave the attorney general power to call any witness and examine them. In the milk suit an order was given by the court commissioner restraining the examination. Judge Belden held today that where a man is a party to an action he must be examined under other sections of the statute. Other may be examined under the new statute.

It was contended that the statute violated constitutional guarantees of due process and to have time to prepare for examination.

"Such rights are fundamental and cannot be taken away," said Judge Belden. Persons are frequently required to respond to process within a short time often times within a few hours and may require responsible guaranties. When charges are made such as the attorney makes here, it is assumed that the matter proceed speedily in order that the charges may be investigated and if unlawful promptly controlled and if lawful the person absolved without unnecessary delay.

"I think the act in question must be held valid, I think parties defendant in an action cannot be examined only under the provision of section two hereof on that all others may be examined under the provision of section one."

AMERICAN AVIATORS' DEATH EXAGGERATED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, Oct. 17.—Leonard M. Reno, American aviator, attached to a French escadrille, is having difficulty in convincing his friends and others that he really isn't dead.

During a recent engagement Reno found himself in his machine over the German lines doing battle with a German fighter. The German plane was lucky shot in Reno's gas tank. Several thousand feet in the air without gasoline for his motor and with a belting engine, Reno had no alternative but to make for home. He did a lot of aerial acrobatics and the German gave up the chase, thinking his opponent done for. Reno tumbled over the French line in safety, but a clump of trees interfered with a smooth landing and he smashed. Allied observers who saw the entire performance thought the aviator had gone to the "honorable roll" and so reported. The news sped its way to Paris, where Reno's friends remarked "another good one gone and proceeded to settle down for a mourning period."

Chapter two of Reno's accident found him crawling from under his battered machine and making for camp. The German plane was seen to be in the air and he might recover from his bruises.

Chapter three finds Reno walking into a Paris bank where he has deposited his money. He has a check for $10,000 and he is ready to cash it. He said as he presented himself at the paying teller's window.

French banks have the habit of always having a check before they cash checks. The customer always waits.

"I'm sorry," said the teller, after consulting the bookkeeper. "We can't cash your check today. You see, Mr. Reno is dead. All his funds will be sent back to his father in Chicago. This check will have to wait."

Like Mark Twain, Reno refused to believe the story or at least thought it was exaggerated. Luckily he happened to know the manager of the bank, who confirmed his story. The check was cashed.

Practically all of the young birdman's friends in Paris had heard of his "untimely death" and were startled in turn when Reno met them, proof in the flesh and blood, that he was not a dead one.

The Russian ships were compelled to retire. The German vessels, it is added, sustained no losses.

Copenhagen Report. Copenhagen, Oct. 17.—With three of the six islands at the entrance of the Gulf of Riga in possession of the German navy, naval operations between German and Russian fleets continue in those waters, according to reports from Petrograd and Berlin today.

Advices from Berlin and Oesel suggest that the Russian fleet is in fact something new, although not always practical, is being worked out all the time.

The Russian torpedo boat Grom and a German torpedo boat were sunk and the Russian gunboat Chrabry damaged in an action in the Sound, which lies between Oesel and Dagos Islands.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Miss Ann Murdock was the last star made by Charles Frohman—his "baby star" he used to call her—because she was the youngest actress he ever placed at the head of her own company. She is a member of that Murdock family that has figured so prominently in American stage history. Born at Port Washington, Long Island, a suburb of Greater New York, she received her education at a Quaker boarding school in Philadelphia and went on the stage when she was only seventeen, appearing straight off as Robert Edson's leading woman in "The Call of the North." William Gillette then engaged her for his comedy, "Electricity," and was so pleased with her that he told Charles Frohman that he had found a girl who was sure to be a star. She got her first really important part in "Excuse Me" and her work in that farce established her as a comedienne. She played the leading role in "A Pair of Sixes" next and it was then that Charles Frohman began to notice her. In the autumn of 1914 he engaged her to play Helene in "The Beautiful Adventure." She was only "featured" on the opening night of that play at the Lyceum theater, New York, but on the second night when she arrived at the theater she was surprised and delighted to see her name blaring in the electric lights over the door. Mr. Frohman had raised her to stellar rank while she slept. The following spring, when she and Helene were their latest production of "A Celebrated Case," at the Empire theater, New York (the last production made before Mr. Frohman was dropped on the Lusitania) she was cast as Miss Murdock for the part of Adrienne. Last season she scored a great success in "Please Help Emily."

Miss Murdock is now in pictures. JOHNNY BULL AND "WESTERNS"
Five years ago 60 per cent of the films used in England were American-made. That was because the American films were invariably "westerns." The demand for "westerns" was so great that European producers tried to satisfy it by duplicating the American style. They did this in their own back yard, and got all confused by having their "Indians" ride not the scrawny, undersized "snakes" of the plains, but sleek, bob-tailed French cavalry

Edna Goodrich, whose entrance into the photoplay field has been marked with pronounced success, is credited with the design of a cross between four women, which is for the present a Scotch cap and a toque. The hat is made of curdery or cloth and has a rakish effect that is mighty striking.

Paris of 1832 is being reproduced at the Fort Lee studios of the William Fox people, where "Miserables" is being filmed with William Farman as Jean Valjean. Cobbled streets have been built and the whole is very realistic.

NAVY REPLETION IS PLANNED BY CHINESE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Tokio, Oct. 17.—The construction of the six new destroyers for the purpose of naval repletion at a cost of $6,000,000, is to be started shortly and the work will be expedited to complete them within the present fiscal year ending April next. The destroyers will all be of middle size and be named the Nara, Kuwa, Tsubaki, Naki, Kiyaki, and Enoki, respectively. The building of the following battleships, cruisers and destroyers is to begin soon at the navy dockyards and at shipbuilding yards at Nagasaki: Battleship Musu (the Ersatz type), with a displacement of 32,000 tons; Cruiser Tama, with a displacement of 7,800 tons; Cruiser Kuma, with a displacement of 3,500 tons, and first-class destroyers Kawakaze, Minekaze and Sawakaze, each of about 1,200 tons. The battleship Musu will carry the largest and most powerful main gun ever mounted on any battleship of the Japanese navy, and the cruiser Tama will be the largest warship of the kind in the Japanese navy. The first class destroyer Kawakaze, which will be one of the largest destroyers in the Japanese navy, is the substitute for the destroyer of the same name which was built in France after the outbreak of the European war and was sold later to an entente power.

Besides these warships a big special service ship with a displacement of 12,000 and five submarines, each displacing 700 tons, will be built at the Kure navy dockyard.

Gets an Unexpected Ride.

Portage, Oct. 17.—When it comes to four, John Miller, who claims to be a resident of Milwaukee, has had all he ever wants. John entered a car of four at Minneapolis for the purpose of arranging a tier of sacks in the middle of the car. Somebody looked the door and when John finally did escape he found he was in Portage. The experience was enough for him.

What Are You Going to Say?

Time Year 1925
 Place Your Home
 Scene Your Child Sitting at your Knee

Your child, like most children, is curious and asks many questions, some of which may puzzle you.

This time the child is asking about the "Great War." Remember, everything at that time will date from the "Great War."

After asking innumerable other questions YOUR child finally asks, "Were you a patriot? Did you wear a sword? Did you shoulder a gun? Did you do anything to help in the great war? Daddy, didn't you even buy a Liberty Bond?"

Think now of how you will feel if you are able to say "Yes, I bought, a LIBERTY BOND, in fact I bought several Liberty Bonds of each issue, so that YOU would always be safe from the terror of another War"

Then remember, the present, right now, the next ten days

When The Liberty Loan Salesman Calls On You—

—remember that he is Uncle Sam's representative, that he is giving up his time without pay, letting his business slide, to help the government in the stupendous task of raising billions.

—remember also, that he is offering you a great investment opportunity—United States Government Bonds offering 4% interest and exempt from normal taxes.

—remember also that he is giving you a chance to help your nation win the great war for your rights as an American Citizen, for the safety of your family and children, for permanent peace, democracy and justice in the world;

—remember this is a matter of credit—not cash—you are loaning your future earnings and savings; don't limit your subscriptions to cash on hand—you have three months, six months, a year in which to pay up.

Give him prompt, considerate attention. Be ready to use your funds and your credit to the limit in subscribing to these U. S. Government Bonds of the Second Liberty Loan.

For, in an hour like this and for such a cause as this, there can be only one question to ask of a patriotic American:

How Many Bonds Will You Buy?
